- The Polar Bear
- Ursus maritimus*

A red box highlights the title "The Polar Bear" with the text "Update the title" and a red arrow pointing to it.

The polar bear, or "Nanuk," as the Eskimos call it, lives only in the Northern Hemisphere, on the arctic ice cap, and spends most of its time in coastal areas. Polar bears are widely dispersed in Canada, extending from the northern arctic islands south to the Hudson Bay area. They are also found in Greenland, on islands off the coast of Norway, on the northern coast of the former Soviet Union, and on the northern and northwestern coasts of Alaska in the United States.

Some polar bears may make extensive north-south migrations as the pack ice recedes northward in the spring and advances southward in the fall. They also may travel long distances during the breeding season to find mates, or in search of food.

Appearance
The polar bear is the largest member of the bear family, with the exception of Alaska's Kodiak brown bears, which equal

Female polar bears prepare large dens on the mainland or on sea ice where they will give birth and spend winter. Usually two cubs are born in December or January.
